The Tom Lea Concert

Texas Hall of State, Fair Park

Tom Lea, native son of El Paso, was a prolific illustrator, artist, war correspondent, muralist and writer. Annually the Tom Lea Project places an event honoring him in a different Texas city and we've been chosen in 2021 to focus on Lea's illustrated historical novel "The hands of Cantú," a tale of the original horse whisperer who in the late 16th C trained the Spanish horses imported to Mexico, thence to the US Southwest. The Renaissance and Baroque music we present in the spectacular Hall of State is, directly, linked to those horses and the same period in Spain.

Wine Reception, Concert , Free Parking $45

Sun, Dec 5, 6pm Christmas Pageant

Our Redeemer Lutheran Church | 7611 Park Ln, Dallas, TX 75225

This year brings a traditional Spanish and Mexican pageant known as La Pastorela, a musical retelling of the shepherds' journey to Bethlehem, with their colorful stories of local folk. The dramatized and costumed telling will bring to life our repertory of typical Spanish language Christmas villancicos (carols).

Jan 27-31 Medieval Spain in Perspective

Location TBA

Behind the Triangle of Al-Andalus. A historical discussion of how the ruling Muslims allowed the liberty of such a rich mixture of cultures to thrive. The evening will present specialists on the medieval world and co-existence of the Sephardic, Islamic and Christian communities. A reminder for greater tolerance in our modern world.

Music of the Convivencia

Location TBA

Tamar Ilana is a much sought after specialist in Sephardic music, having lived with it under the tutelage of her mother, the respected ethnomusicologist Dr. Judith Cohen. Tamar brings to our stage her Ladino pedigree plus her charisma as a world music and flamenco performer. She will be joined by Jamal Mohamed and his World Music band, and ONS musicians' continuing exploration of King Alfonso the Wise's extensive collection of 420 Cantigas de Santa Maria. $25 / $10 students

Flamenco Pastorela

Moody Performance Hall

Dallas Arts District | 2520 Flora Street

We're thrilled to host a revised working of the Flamenco Pastorela cancelled last season, with the additional talents of Spanish choreographer Lidón Patiño Berjas. She will join with Yjastros Flamenco Company of Albuquerque' National Institute of Flamenco in a production interpreting the early pueblo roots of the Mexican Pastorela and bringing us up to date with New Mexico Flamenco. The production will follow the colorful encounters of the Shepherds (pastores) with various devils and the seven deadly sins in a battle of good over evil. Although we don't know the specific music played for the early Pastorelas, parish records from the 17th c speak of works brought from Spain, and how well the indigenous peoples adapted their pre-existing celebrations to the Christian tradition, including Spanish Renaissance dance music, in our case co-choreographed by Artistic Director Joaquin and Deanna Encinias in the first act. The pure drama of Flamenco in Act II features Ingravitta, with choreography by Daniel Doña our guest in 2019.
